Edgetech Adds Two to Sales Team

Cambridge, Ohio – March 21, 2007 – In a move designed to improve its already high standards of service, Edgetech I.G., the world's leading manufacturer of NO-metal warm edge spacer systems, is announcing two additions to its customer-centric team.

First, Mike Burk, a fifteen year veteran of the insulating glass industry will bring his expertise to managing the Eco-Coat product line. In this role, Burk will lead both sales and customer service teams, specifically assisting in outlining and implementing internal training programs, as well as providing direct support.

According to Larry Johnson, executive vice president, Edgetech I.G., Burk's contribution to Edgetech's service offerings won't be limited to the Eco-Coat line.

“Saying that Mike has a strong background in our industry is an understatement. We would be remiss if we didn't leverage Mike's expertise in understanding and anticipating the customers' needs. His addition will elevate our service model to an exciting level.”

Having previously worked with an I.G. equipment supplier, Burk received his bachelor's degree in business from Myers College in Cleveland and his master's in adult learning and development from Cleveland State University. He currently resides in Cleveland.

“At the end of the day it's the people your customers interface with that make the difference,” Johnson said. “You consider yourself lucky when you can add one high calibre person; by bringing Beau on board we have significantly increased the level of service our customers have come to expect. His dedication to improving customer satisfaction is exemplary.”

Jasmer earned his bachelor's degree in production and operations management from California State University, Chico. He previously served as purchasing agent and customer service manager for Pulte Homes Inc. Jasmer currently resides in Sacramento, California.
