Edgetech Promotes New Key Accounts Representative

Cambridge, Ohio – Dec. 5, 2007 –Edgetech I.G. attributes much of its success to the company's industry-leading customer service department. As Edgetech continues to provide the highest quality products and services, the company has promoted a new key accounts representative, Irish Rubright.

Edgetech promoted Rubright after she had been with the company for eight years as a customer service representative. In her new role, Rubright manages all customer service processes between corporate and key accounts in coordination with national sales managers and regional sales representatives.

“Thanks to Irish's proven reputation for great customer service and account management, I know she'll be an effective asset to the company as a key accounts representative,” said Larry Johnson, executive vice president, Edgetech I.G. “She will be a great mentor and leader for the other representatives, all while helping to take our customer service to a new level of excellence.”

Rubright has lived in the Cambridge area her entire life, attending John Glenn High School and Muskingum and Zane State Colleges. She enjoys spending time with her husband Todd and sons Kody, 11, and Mitchell, five. Rubright is a certified ISO auditor and has co-chaired the Lauren Skin Savers Relay for Life team for the past three years.

“I love my job and helping people every day,” Rubright said. “I'm excited to begin this new position and accept additional responsibilities—there's a reason why I've stayed for the last eight years.”
