Steve Rosenstock Steps Down from NFRC Board of Directors
Former Board Member Replaced by Roland Temple

GREENBELT, MD. (Nov. 11, 2008) – The National Fenestration Rating Council (NFRC) Board of Directors announced that Steve Rosenstock resigned from the Board prior to its meeting in Jacksonville, Fla. on Friday, November 7.

Rosenstock cited his inability to commit the time required to effectively fulfill his duties as the reason for his decision. The NFRC Board acted quickly to replace Rosenstock by appointing Roland Temple of AZS Consulting, Inc. to fill his seat until the Fall 2009 election.

"We respect Steve's decision to step down at this time and hope in the future he may have more time to commit to the organization," said NFRC Executive Director Jim Benney. "We are extremely grateful to the service of our volunteer members and understand that they have many other responsibilities at their jobs."

Rosenstock initially joined the Board as an energy efficiency representative from the Edison Electric Institute.

Temple has more than 20 years of experience in the fenestration industry and has served on the NFRC Board of Directors as Treasurer, past Chair of the Ratings Committee, and current chair of the Certification Policy Committee.
